MARYVILLE COLLEGE

Maryville, Tennessee

DEDICATED to our beloved President, Samuel Tyndale Wilson, whose unfailing energy and prophetic vision have made possible a glorious close to the first century of Maryville College.

FOREWORD

IN THE TASK OF PRODUCING A CENTENNIAL CHILHOWEAN, IT HAS BEEN OUR AMBITION TO GIVE TO THOSE WHO ARE ABOUT TO LEAVE OUR ALMA MATER, AND TO ALL STUDENTS AND ALUMNI OF MARYVILLE COLLEGE, A MEMORY BOOK THAT WILL BE TREASURED IN THE YEARS TO COME.

THE FAILINGS OF THIS ANNUAL ARE NOT DUE TO INSINCERITY OF PURPOSE OR LACK OF EARNEST ENDEAVOR ON THE PART OF ITS EDITORS, BUT RATHER TO THEIR INABILITY, AND TO THE UNUSUAL CONDITIONS BROUGHT ABOUT BY THE WORLD WAR. MAY WE HAVE YOUR APPROVAL AND APPRECIATION OF OUR EFFORTS IN THE COMPLETION OF THIS BOOK, AS WE HAVE HAD YOUR SUPPORT IN COMPILING IT.

The History of the College in the Lives of Three Men

MEN make institutions. The history of institutions is written in the lives of men. This is particularly true of Maryville College. Self-sacrificing men have devoted their labors, their talents, their very lives to the establishment and development of our college, now completing its first century. We are often reminded that the student body makes the college, and this is true in a measure if we take into consideration merely the spirit of the institution during any given four year period. But in looking back over the century we can clearly see that the men who really made the college were those faithful and persistent toilers who devoted their lives, often amidst the most discouraging circumstances and with little pecuniary return, to the service of our Alma Mater. Many names are on this roll of honor, many men and women deserve the highest praise for their unselfish and devoted service that has made Maryville what it is today. There are three names, however, that stand out in flaming letters, three lives that span the entire century of Maryville's existence, three men whose biographies form in themselves a history of Maryville College—Isaac Anderson, T. J. Lamar, Samuel T. Wilson.

Founded in 1819 by Rev. Isaac Anderson, the Southern and Western Theological Seminary had as its first purpose the training of ministers to serve in this section of the country, then entirely neglected by the seminaries of the North. It was an humble beginning. The founder himself was at first the entire faculty, and nothing but his unselfish devotion, indomitable perseverance, and lofty faith gave reality to his dreams. The men whom he gathered around him and who continued his work in those early days struggled hard and long, with but little visible means of support, to maintain the standards and ideals of the school. It was soon evident that if the "seminary" was to continue in existence it must have a college department to provide the necessary preliminary training and in 1821 this work was provided for. As time went on, this department increased in importance and more and more came to be not simply a preparatory department for the "seminary," but an institution in itself furnishing a higher education to the youth of this section without regard to the calling they intended to pursue. But the work of the college was rudely interrupted by war and bloodshed when, on April 22, 1861, students and professors separated, many of them to don the blue or the gray and to meet perchance upon the field of battle.

Finally the clouds of war were dispelled and the sun arose upon a new Maryville. The old Maryville was gone. Its students and faculty were scattered. Many of them had answered the last roll call. The buildings and equipment were well-nigh ruined, but phoenix like, a new Maryville arose from the ashes of the old, for there was a man ready to devote his talents and his life to the re-founding of Maryville College. His name is the second outstanding name on our roll of honor. Rev. T. J. Lamar, a student of Dr. Anderson's, and a member of the ante-bellum faculty, reopened the college in 1866 with thirteen students in a dilapidated building, with little equipment and almost no funds. It was a sorry outlook, but the same qualities that had crowned Dr. Anderson's efforts with success were present in its "second founder," and a new era dawned. No attempt was made to revive the "seminary," but all efforts were concentrated upon the broader work of the college. A faculty was secured, men of means were interested in the institution, the present campus of 235 acres was purchased, and Anderson, Memorial, and Baldwin Halls were erected—three rectangular buildings that formed the nucleus of the present plant. The number of students increased rapidly and it became increasingly evident that no real advancement was possible unless the college could cease its hand-to-mouth existence and secure a permanent endowment. In 1880 Prof. Lamar set out to secure a permanent endowment fund of $100,000, an enormous sum for a weak institution to set as its goal in those days. Then followed three years of unceasing toil and terrific strain, but the fund was finally completed, and for the first time Maryville College was placed upon a substantial financial foundation.

Prof. Lamar was obliged to relinquish his active duties in 1886 on account of his failing health, and passed away the next year, but another was at hand to carry on his work. Rev. S. T. Wilson, of the class of 1878, was elected Professor of English Literature in 1884, and his is the third name in Maryville's first century. For seventeen years as Professor and for eighteen years as President he has labored incessantly with the same spirit and devotion that characterized Dr. Anderson and Prof. Lamar. The results are known to all: the large increase in faculty, studentbody, and equipment, the erection of Voorhees Chapel, Pearsons Hall, Carnegie Hall (old and new), the Lamar Memorial Hospital, the third story of Science Hall, the completion of the Forward Fund of $227,000 in 1910, the present campaign for the Centennial Forward Fund—and the end is not yet.

Two pages for a history of Maryville College! A hundred years in a thousand words! How much must be omitted. We have said nothing of the work of Presidents Bartlett and Boardman, and of members of the faculty of other days, of the generous donors whose gifts have made possible the wonderful advancement of the institution, of Kin Takahashi and Bartlett Hall, of Miss Margaret Henry and the Scholarship Funds. We have simply traced Maryville's first century in the story of three men whose lives span that century, and whose devoted service has in great measure made Maryville what it is today.

The Centennial Forward Fund Campaign

THESE words were penned on March first, when the final three months' campaign for the completion of the Centennial Forward Fund of $325,000 was being begun. It was in 1916 that the Directors of Maryville College authorized the effort to secure such a fund to commemorate the rounding out of the first century of the history of the College and to equip the institution for greater usefulness in the second century that would begin with commencement day, June 5, 1919. Such cheering progress was made in the campaign for the fund that in the spring of 1917 it seemed almost certain that the goal would be reached by the beginning of 1918. In case the Fund had been subscribed by that date, it was expected that much of the Fund would be collected and many resultant improvements could be made during the eighteen months that would elapse before the Centennial commencement day should arrive.

The tragic outbreak of war between our country and Germany in April, 1917, put a sudden end to the efforts that were being made in behalf of the Centennial Fund. Everything that did not directly contribute to the prosecution of the war had to be relegated to a secondary place. The College was more concerned in preparing and sending its men and women into the service of their country and in caring for them while thus engaged than in seeking, as in the times of peace it had been seeking, added ability for the ordinary educational service that it had been created to render. All that it could do was to keep the College functioning in spite of diminished attendance and greatly increased running expenses. War work funds had everywhere the right of way, and all else must be postponed until the days of peace should return.

The armistice was signed on November 11, 1918, and the Maryville S. A. T. C. unit was demobilized on December 10. Early in January, President Wilson renewed the campaign that had been intermitted twenty months before. He returned from a trip to the Northwest to attend the February Meetings, which Maryville men rightly deem of more importance even than the gathering of endowments. And now the final stage of the campaign is beginning.

What must be done during the last twelve weeks of the college year is the securing of at least $80.000 to complete the bare $325,000 which was fixed as the minimum of what Maryville needed in order to make an adequate advance in service in the New Era upon which the College and the world are now entering.

A large task, but, under the kind providence of God, not an impossible one! There is much to encourage Maryville's faith and hope. One of the most cheering omens is the action taken by the Presbytery of Union in January, in the appointment of a Special Committee with instructions to raise a Union Presbytery Fund of $25,000. The prospect is that the month of May, at which time this campaign will be prosecuted, will witness the Presbytery go over the top for the amount that is sought and for even more than that amount.

What other friends of Christian education will come to the help of the century-old College can not yet be known; but, rendered confident by the providences of a century, the old College expects, with the favor of Heaven, to celebrate at its centennial celebration at the coming commencement, a victorious ending of its campaign for the Centennial Forward Fund of $325,000. And the heavy-laden men who bear the financial burdens of the College believe that, when that consummation has been reached, the old College will be able to realize its ambitions for greater and better service as never before.

The Centennial Pageant

THE first century of the history of Maryville College has come to a close. It has been an eventful century. Heroic service and unlimited sacrifice have characterized it from beginning to end. Any attempt to depict adequately the full story of Maryville from the humble beginnings in the old Log College down to the more pretentious present would fall sadly short of the romance of the actual.

The Centennial Pageant, which will be staged during commencement week, will make no such pretense. It will seek only to present and celebrate the great ideals of faith and self-denying service which have made the Maryville of the past a respected and valued institution.

The stage will be outdoors, on the campus. The figures in the Pageant will be students. It is very appropriate that the principal figures are to be members of the class of 1919. The allegorical introduction will present Alma Mater, a symbolical figure, with her attendant spirits. These spirits she has summoned in order that they may call up before her, as she stands at the milestone of the years, the vision of the past. It is this vision, conjured up by the spirits for the benefit of Alma Mater, that the audience will be permitted to see. Such interesting figures as Dr. Isaac Anderson as a young man and also as an aged hero; Professor Lamar, the second founder of the College, as a courageous seeker after funds with which to lay the foundation of its present; Dr. Wilson as a college boy helping to organize the Y. M. C. A. on the hill; these and many others will be strikingly presented in the vision of a great century.

A complete program is, at this time, impossible. The spectacle will include representations of the following scenes in the History of a Hundred Years:

The Coming of the Andersons from Virginia and Dr. Anderson's Vision of a College.

The Typical Rural Home in the East Tennessee of 1819.

"Gaily"

Senior Poem

Our marching orders are "Forward!" and the note is distinct and clear:
They urge us onward, onward, and bid us never fear.
They come to us in the night-time, and they come to us during the day;
They haunt us sleeping or waking, and follow us all our way.
Though we take the wings of the morning and fly to the uttermost parts,
To the valleys, the deserts, and mountains, the call is still in our hearts.
It warns the pleasure-seekers and those who strive to be gay
To turn from their maddened courses and cast themselves in the fray.
It pleads with the grave and the sober, who live in despairing mood
To banish their doubts and suspicions and work for a brother's good.
It comes to the strong and the feeble, it comes to old age and youth,
Bidding them heed its call and herald the message of truth.
The battle is on, oh comrades, the battle for justice and right.
No time to falter or think of ourselves but on to the fray and fight!
Fight on till oppressed and oppressor shall unite in a common cause,
Till equity and justice shall govern, Fight on! Do not pause.
Fight on till the weak and the fallen shall find a place at our side,
Fight on till the sense of equality shall in our hearts abide.
Fight on till men of all nations in different parts of the earth
Shall feel that they are brothers regardless of station or birth.

Oh our marching orders are "Forward!" and the path of service is wide;
Shall we heed the summon, my comrades, to work and to duties untried?
Shall we meet the challenge bravely with a strong and courageous heart?
Willing to share in the struggle and willing to do our part?
Shall we champion the cause of justice, the cause of right against wrong?
Shall we strengthen the weak and the fallen and relieve the oppressed throng?
Then on! for the contest is bitter and the contest has only begun;
Fight on! fight on heroically, never stop till victory is won.
The victory is sure, my comrades, its approach is very near
If we only fight and have courage, never falter or never fear.
In the world a new day is dawning, a day of hope for all men
When peace and good will shall flourish and freedom shall triumph again.

To the Memory of the Class of 1918

"Oh to be at Maryville
Now that April's here."

THEY have gone now, the Class of 1918, the War Class, but the students of Maryville College cannot forget the service they rendered to the College, to the country, and to humanity. The Class of 1918 had hopes and aspirations as every other graduating class; they looked forward to the time when they as a class should stand on the threshold of life ready to step out and meet the world's demand for educated men and women. But the hopes of the class were shattered; the year 1918 found our country in the greatest struggle that the world has ever known. There was a demand that every man, woman, and child rally to the cause and give everything, even life if need be. The Class of 1918 heeded the call, and never before in the history of the College had so many volunteered to fight. Unselfishly they gave up class honors and the hope of graduating from College. They sacrificed every ambition that had been theirs as a class, for the sake of country and Christianity.

Although this class was torn by disappointments and broken by the demands of war, the survivors that were left on College Hill took a leading part in all College activities and triumphed over every misfortune.

In 1918 the weekly paper of the College, "The Highland Echo," had for its Editor, first Turner, and later Taylor, and Scruggs, Manager. This class published the annual for the Senior Class in 1917, Miss Knapp being Editor and Turner, Manager. Anderson and Scruggs were Editor and Manager for the record book of 1918.

A number of Oratorical Contests were won by the Class of '18. Miss Simpson won the State Prohibition Contest. The intercollegiate debaters from the class were Williams, Turner, Logan, Cooper, Lloyd, and Dawson.

Five of the Varsity Eleven were members of the War Class: Bryson, Cooper, Lloyd, Scruggs, and Garrison. Garrison was Manager and Captain of the Basketball Team. This class furnished five of the Baseball Nine: Scruggs, Cooper, Bryson, Lloyd, and Dawson. Lloyd and Dawson were also Varsity Tennis men.

In 1915 this class furnished a twelve piece orchestra. In 1918 the Senior Mixed Quartette gave concerts in Tennessee and adjoining states for the benefit of the War Relief Fund.

The Class of '18 did its part for the cause of liberty. It helped to restore peace, and now that "the world must be rebuilt," with the spirit of old Maryville its members will go forward and meet the responsibilities that will inevitably fall upon them. The spirit of courage and self-sacrifice that characterized the class will be an inspiration to Maryville students for years to come and a lasting memorial to the class. The doing of their full part in the rebuilding of the world will be a veritable triumph of their Alma Mater's earnest endeavors.

JUNIORS

The Junior Hope
Will ever be
Anchored in the Senior sea

JESSIE CRESWELL

PRESIDENT

Justly famed for common sense
Constant in her diligence.

GEORGE CALLAHAN

VICE-PRESIDENT

Gallant and full of "pep" is he,
Clever at books he is said to be.

BESSIE HENRY

SECRETARY

Benign her countenance, pleasant her smile,
Her vote is for "moonshine" all the while.

HORACE BROWN

TREASURER

He's mighty busy every day,
But he "moonshines" too they say.

EDITH MOORE

EDITOR

Every one has learned to admire her modest grace;
Most loyal she is, so sweet and fair of face.

ROBERT BELT

Right faithfully his task he plies;
Be sure in this world he is destined to rise.

FRED CAGLE

Finding that it pays to smile—
Cheerful he is all the while.

MILDRED CAMPBELL

Most faithful Mildred, now her worth we know;
Calmly she joined our class some time ago.

ASHTON CLAYTON

"A great life, this!" Ashton's favorite pun.
Cute little girl, brimming over with fun.

IRROVIA CORRY

In her modest, quiet way
Carefully does her work each day.

MARY CRESWELL

Moving about without much noise,
Calmly and serenely she keeps her poise.

HELEN GAMBLE

Her wisdom is exceedingly great,
Good grades she is sure to make.

JOEL GEORGES

Joined in matrimony—what more can we say?
Guess poor "Georgie" has had his day.

JOHN HALKO

Just listen to his brilliant remarks,
He's classed among our literary sharks.

MATTIE HAMILTON

Mathematics and physics—for some of us hard,
Have no terrors for her, in them she starred.

HATTIE HAYES

How great a talent for music has she!
Her fame in the future world-wide will be.

MARY LOUISE HAYES

Merry little "Little 'Un" happy and gay,
Her work she does as if it were play.

STACEY HOWELL

Sulphur, phosphorus, magnesium, hydrogen, and argon—
How Stacey loves the laboratory, and the assistant in the bargain.

MINNIE HUNTER

Much talent in expression has she,
Her skill as a reader is evident, you see.

ISAAC HUSKEY

In all that he may do,
Honest and manly and true.

LICIA JOHNSON

Lady-like and quiet as you can see,
Junior through and through is she.

HELEN LEWIS

Here's the debater of our class,
Lovely, brown-eyed little lass.

JAMES MARTIN

Just and manly and good,
"Moonshines?" Oh, no! Wish he would.

VERA McCAMPBELL

Very studious is she,
Makes grades that are good to see.

THOMAS McCONNELL

Tommie was a soldier, brave and bold;
"Moonshines" on Sundays, not Mondays, we're told.

ADDIE McCURRY

And look at this lady, you will see
Merry, quite saucy, and dainty-she.

WILLODINE McIVER

When it came to writing poetry, or helping win a game
Many times we called for Billie, and Billie always came.

FRANK McLAUGHLIN

Friendly, thoughtful and courageous is he
Mixing among the students as quickly as can be.

WINSTON NEWTON

Winsome ways and a face so fair;
No sweeter voice e'er filled the air.

CERENA POLK

Certainly here is a girl to admire,
Possessing such knowledge as few can acquire.

ALETHA PURDY

As lovable as she is fair,
Pleasant and happy everywhere.

MADRITH PURDY

"Moonshine" a specialty, basketball her art;
Plucky little girl with a great big heart.

LAURA PUTMAN

Looks both winning and wise,
Power lies hidden behind those eyes.

CATHERINE RIDGEWAY

Curly her hair, her eyes so roguishly brown;
Right often in basketball she's won renown.

UGEE STUMP

U. S. stands for Ugee, Uncle Sam, and us;
Seems like some folks always get A plus.

HELEN TEDFORD

Her's are laughing eyes of blue;
To know her is to love her too.

AUGUSTA TEMPLIN

Augusta is an athletic maid—
'Tis many a hard game she has played.

MARY THOMPSON

Mild and sweet and true,
Trust her and she'll trust you.

HOMER WEISBECKER

Here's our great basketball star,
Wins fame from near and far.

IF

(With Apologies to Rudyard Kipling)

IF you can pass exams when all about you
  Are flunking theirs and blaming it on fate;
If you can prove your worth when all men doubt you,
  And chase their doubts before it is too late;
If you can play and not be spoiled by pleasure,
  Or having fun, don't live for fun alone,
Or breaking rules don't lower your high measure,
  And then by honest work for play atone;

IF you can moonshine—nor make it your master;
  If you can stroll—and yet not stroll too far,
If you can meet a matron and get past her,
  And never let Dean Barnes your pleasure mar:
If you can bear to see the game you wanted
  Go to the guy who doped the referee,
Or see the team you gave your cheers to, taunted,
  And next year beat 'em up with sportive glee;

IF you can pass Intelligence Tests with credit;
  And find your Math an everlasting joy,
If you can face a French test and not dread it,
  And not let term exams your peace annoy;
If you can swallow hash without complaining,
  And really relish beans week after week,
And so eat Pearsons' fare without disdaining,
  And then go off to town and Mitchell's seek;

IF you can talk to "Fish" and keep your virtue,
  And walk with Sophs—nor lose your stately stride,
If neither preps nor Seniors wise can hurt you,
  Or down the Green and Gold, your pride:
If you can fill the year with pleasure rarest,
  And nine good months of honest work well done,
Then life is yours and everything that's fairest,
  And—which is more—you're a true Junior, son!

CLASS OF '22

From eighteen widely-separated states and one foreign land flocked the Freshmen to Maryville College last September. Ninety-six cast their lot together on College Hill.

All came for one purpose—preparation for service. Thirteen of the boys enlisted in the Student Army Training Corps, some of whom were sent to Officers' Training Schools, but after the signing of the armistice, returned to prepare for the days of reconstruction. Others, freed from military duty elsewhere, came back. The girls, too, are measuring up to the responsibility and needs of brighter days.

The Class of '22 believes that "It is better to wear out than to rust out." To remain in a small and secluded sphere aids only one's selfishness. To get out and into the struggle means service! The world does not need the man who rusts in self-satisfaction; but honors the man, weary and worn, who has served his fellows.

"Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not the goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returneth
Was not spoken of the soul.

"Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

Hi! Yi! Rip! Rah! Ree!
Watch Us! Watch Us! And You'll See
We Are Climbers, Sis, Boom, Bah!
Third Preps, Third Preps, Rah! Rah! Rah!

As our motto suggests, we believe in reaching a high goal. To do so, we realize we must be on the alert for every worthy opportunity and grasp it; we must try every foothold and place the weight of our careers only on those that are safe and firm.

We call ourselves climbers, and so we are steadily climbing over the steeps necessary in preparation for a thorough college education.

None scale the top before the depths
Be passed by slow and steady steps.

And that is why the third preparatory students are firmly taking the first steps.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

The Music Department of the College is under the direction of Miss Hale, who is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where she was a member of the teaching force before coming to Maryville. Under her supervision the department has become one of the largest in Tennessee.

Co-operating with Miss Hale are six assistant teachers of piano, these having charge of the elementary and intermediate grades.

Miss Gregg, who has charge of the Vocal Department, is also a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory. Besides having attained distinction as a singer, Miss Gregg is a master of the organ and directs the chorus of the College.

Prof. Garratt has this year taken charge of the Violin Department. His musicianship is well known in this part of the state and his skill as a teacher is evident in the fine results he is attaining in his department, and in his splendid direction of the orchestra.

VESPER CHOIR

A very important organization in connection with Maryville College is the Vesper Choir, which began its existence when Dr. Stevenson established the very popular Sunday Evening Vesper Service.

At these services the choir of fifty voices appear in the vestments which were a gift from Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson.

The imposing processional and recessional add dignity to the occasion and the chant and anthem which the chorus renders are evidences of the splendid musical training which is given this organization by Miss Hale and Miss Gregg.

The climax of the year is reached by the chorus when the Easter Cantata is given—this year Wessel's "Calvary" being the musical contribution of the organization.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Maryville College is located in what is now becoming one of the foremost agricultural counties in Tennessee. With this growth came the call for men with a knowledge of the scientific side of agriculture. In the fall of 1915, Maryville College, wishing to meet these needs, established the Department of Agriculture, under the direction of Mr. A. S. Kiefer.

After carrying on the work very successfully, Mr. Keifer resigned in January, 1917, and his place was taken by Mr. James V. Hopkins.

The aim of the department has been to give a practical application of scientific agriculture and the fundamental principles of farm management. The department has adapted the courses to meet the needs of those who will go back to the farm, as well as those who desire to specialize in agriculture at agricultural colleges, or teach in the public schools.

The beginning of the department has of necessity been small, but its future is limited only to the needs of the great country which Maryville College is serving.

Maryville's Part in the Great War

ALTRUISM has been the keynote of Maryville College during the entire century of her existence. An institution having such a spirit would be expected to render the greatest possible service to the Nation in time of war. Therefore, it is not surprising to find that in the stress of the Great Conflict, which has just ended, Maryville gave for America and for humanity, without reserve, herself and all she had.

When war was declared in April, 1917, those in charge of the College immediately notified the Government that Maryville College was ready to serve the Nation by any means within her power—a pledge that was fulfilled without stint or reservation. Within a few hours after the Declaration of War the students were voluntarily drilling on the campus, and enthusiasm was so high that two battalions of boys, and one of girls, were organized for drill. Almost every student of the College voluntarily became a member of one of these battalions; and before three months had passed practically every man of military age who had thus been trained was in the Army or Navy. And, in passing, two facts should be noted: first, that our girls' battalion was the first instance of college girls taking up voluntary military training in the whole United States; and second, that among all the teachers and students of Maryville College there was not a pro-German or hyphenated American, or any person who could even be suspected of being such.

In a steady stream, from the beginning of the war to the day the armistice was signed, Maryville sent forth her sons and daughters, alumni, teachers, and students, to give themselves for the Great Cause. A large part of Co. B of the 117th Inf., a part of the famous 30th Division that broke the Hindenburg line, was made up of Maryville College men, as was also a great part of Battery C of the 114th Field Artillery, that were in the first line of advance in the Battle of St. Mihiel, the first great success achieved by the American Army in France. Not only in these regiments, but in almost every regiment in the Army and Marine Corps, and on almost every ship in the American Navy, Maryville was represented. And to a man every one of these rendered brave, faithful, honorable service. And no small amount of credit belongs to the Maryville College women, whose work for the comfort of our men, and whose encouragement, did perhaps more than all other things in enabling Maryville men to make the great record they did.

The signing of the Armistice found Maryville an army post. The Government, having availed itself of Maryville's offer of service, had established a unit of the S. A. T. C. on College Hill, and was every day sending out men to re-enforce the great army that had gone before. The Maryville unit of the S. A. T. C., under the command of Lieut. LaBelle, was one of the most efficient in the United States.

Lack of space prevents more than mention of the purchase of Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps, the contributions to the Y. M. C. A. and other War Welfare Work, the educational work done throughout the country in public speaking and teaching of War Aims by Maryville College teachers and students, and the general spirit of patriotism which pervaded the entire institution and all connected with it.

But no space however great, or words however eloquent, can ever express Maryville's feeling of admiration, love, and tenderness for those of her own dear sons who cheerfully gave their lives that men might be free, and who sleep today under some of the little wooden crosses in France or Belgium, or in the depths of the ocean. Not one will ever be forgotten.

FEBRUARY MEETINGS

THE forty-second series of the annual February meetings was conducted this year by Rev. E. A. Elmore, D.D., of Chattanooga, Tennessee. Dr. Elmore's sermons were progressive, convincing, and exceptionally clear and practical. He has a strong personality and to a wonderful degree is able to understand and appreciate the difficulties and problems of the young people; his rich experience enables him to direct their thought to the successful solution of these difficulties. Also the example of his consecrated life added much force to his words, and won for him a warm place in the hearts of his hearers.

Two striking factors, which aided in the meetings, were the interest shown by the alumni and friends of the College, and the attitude of the students themselves. Many letters were received by Dr. Wilson, some of which were read from the platform. They came from various sources, and all breathed a spirit of encouragement to the unconverted, and expressed wishes for the success of the meetings. The students entered into the atmosphere of the meetings with an excellent spirit. Many volunteered for personal work.

There is indeed cause for thanksgiving for the conversion of seventy-four students, and the reconsecration of a much larger number, also for the spiritual blessings that have come to faculty and students, which will make them stronger and more useful.

Y.W.C.A.

Young Women's Christian Association

AS the symbol of the Young Women's Christian Association suggests, the organization provides for the young women the most complete and highest development possible. It seeks to develop girls with true blue Christian characters. Because the students at college are so surrounded by educational facilities and by physical and social recreations from other sources, the Y. W. C. A. at Maryville College expends its largest effort in drawing the girls into closer relation to their Master, and in providing exercises which lead to spiritual growth. The other departments, however, are not neglected.

For young Christians, who have not had experience in speaking and praying in public, the Y. W. C. A. offers a wonderful chance to form beautiful and useful characters. There is organized a prayer circle which meets every morning, where the girls learn to lead a group in Bible study and to know the power and comfort of prayer. The Mission Study Class and the weekly meetings serve to draw the attention of the girls to their obligations to God and man as followers of Christ. Besides the benefit which the leaders receive from the meetings, the members as a whole are immeasurably helped by the discussions of the practical problems which confront and perplex young people that are endeavoring to live righteous lives.

As the boys have so nobly enlisted in the service of their country, so this year the girls of Maryville have been aroused to their duty, and a larger per cent have joined the ranks of the greatest Leader than in any previous year.

As for the social life, the girls have taken long hikes and have come together for whole-hearted amusement at several socials. The "Y. W." girl is a cheery, happy person, and tries to make others so.

Every year the association furnishes the student body with several entertainments. This year a musical has been held under the leadership of Miss Hale, and a play has been staged by the Expression students, directed by Mrs. West.

"I came that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." We who are Christ's strive to live a complete life and work to make the lives of others abundant.

The Centennial Program of the Y. M. C. A.

MARYVILLE'S Y. M. C. A. has a record of forty-one years of which it can justly be proud. Much work has been undertaken and accomplished. Its past history abounds with the names of illustrious, conscientious, and enthusiatic leaders who have gradually strengthened the organization. It was the purpose of the Association not only to continue the work so nobly begun, but to extend it even farther, in order that the pioneer student association may keep pace with the other colleges of the country, and prepare to meet the great opportunities which the near future will bring. To this end the program below was carefully outlined. Thanks to the War Work Council of the Army Y. M. C. A., who sustained an Army Secretary and aided the work by furnishing supplies, and by having a general supervision over the activities by offering suggestions and criticism, the local organization was able to take a step forward in the line of service for the boys of the college.

Bible Discussion Groups

The hub around which all the religious work revolved, as well as other forms of activities, was the organization of the Bible Discussion Groups. The object of these Groups was to meet for a full half hour every Sunday morning for Bible Discussion. Each floor in Carnegie Hall except the first floor constituted one Group. The first floor was combined with the basement. The officers in each Group consisted of a Leader, an Assistant Leader, a Secretary, an Athletic Captain, and two or more Boosters. The book that was used for the basis of discussion was Bosworth's "About Jesus."

The Leaders Training Conference

Next in importance was the Leaders Training Conference, which met once a week for the purpose of preparing for the discussion of the following Sunday. The first ten or fifteen minutes were used in giving reports, in devotional exercise, and in trying to solve problems that arose. The Conference consisted of the Army Secretary, who conducted the meetings and led the discussions, and all of the officers of the Groups. The object of these Conferences was not only to arrive systematically at the heart of the lesson and agree upon a practical application to be used in the Groups, but to stimulate enthusiasm, to breed encouragement, and to promote a close fellowship among the leaders.

The World Forum

This was conducted every other Sunday afternoon as a part of the regular afternoon meeting. The Forum consisted of a thirty-minute discussion of an up-to-the-minute mission subject, led by Dr. Stevenson, the College Pastor. From time to time different members were asked to report on statistics or give other information. Murray's book, "The Call of a World Task in War Times," was used.

Sunday Afternoon Meetings

These continued as was usual in other years, except with the change noted above. A special effort was made to increase the interest and attendance at these meetings by providing good music and live-wire speakers.

Inner Circles

A day's work properly begun with prayer and the thoughtful reading of God's word will fortify a person against the trials and discouragements of the whole day, and will inspire him with spiritual vitality. This was the purpose of the Inner Circles. Once a week a short prayer meeting was held in each Group, and in addition, many boys pledged themselves to spend at least ten minutes each day in prayer, Bible reading, and meditation. New Testaments and booklets containing daily Bible readings were given to all who desired them.

Physical Work

The leading feature of the physical program was the Monday afternoon athletic meets. These consisted of mass games, competitive Group events, interclass games, and other special features.

Social and Educational Activities

Weekly moving picture shows, illustrated lectures, and socials furnished means for clean entertainment and profitable instruction. In addition, two large rooms in Bartlett Hall were used for reading and game rooms, equipped with pianos, a phonograph, writing materials, library, games, and eighteen of the best weekly and monthly magazines. A Social Hygiene Exhibit, prepared by the government, was given in Bartlett Hall in the latter part of March. A successful Lyceum Course was conducted as in former years.

The work of the past year was more or less experimental, but it is believed that much of the above program will be adopted as permanent features of the Y. M. C. A. activities for future years.

The Ministerial Association, like all other college activities, has been seriously effected by war conditions. Nevertheless, the members, though fewer in number than heretofore, have carried on that work which they and others have thus far so nobly advanced.

Many of our members are found in different branches of the Army and Navy in the service of our country.

The different members of the Association took an active part in the February meetings in doing personal work and in assisting the Y. M. C. A. in holding daily prayer meetings for the boys in Carnegie Hall.

The Mission at Battle Branch has been conducted very successfully this year. We have a large Sabbath School attendance, and some of the members hold an evening service every Sabbath evening. A series of very helpful, instructive, and inspiring lectures are given every year to the Association by one or more of the honorary members.

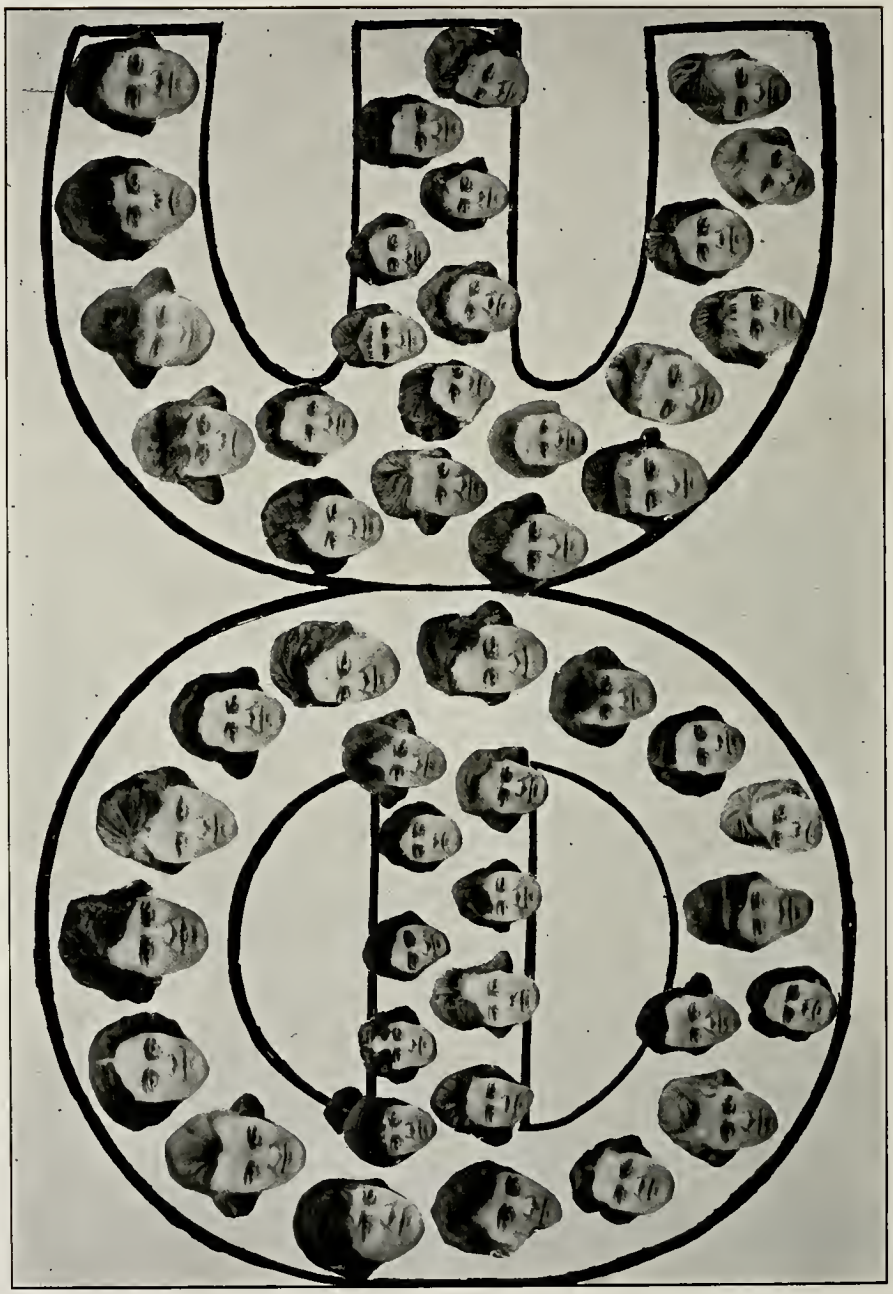
The good old "Society of the Owl and Crescent" is entering upon its second half century auspiciously, in spite of the disastrous effects of the war felt by all boys' societies. The fall term began with the debt cleared away, and the clean page showed a goodly balance in War Savings Stamps.

The Society had its work well started when the induction of the college men into the S. A. T. C. so complicated the program that meetings were by no means certain. The college and preparatory departments were combined as a war measure. Also another excellent expedient was resorted to by which, with the conjunction of all the societies on the Hill, regular joint meetings were held.

The year 1919 saw a rapid recovery of Athenian strength and standing. The men, freed from military duties, flocked back to their old meeting place. Membership grew with marvelous rapidity. In one three-week period thirty new members were accepted.

Altogether, the college centennial year will be looked upon as a year of Athenian accomplishment and of foundation work for future growth. With our proud history, choice location, unequaled furnishings, spirit of brotherly co-operation with the Alphas, and well known Athenian spirit of good fellowship we fall in, ready for the "Forward March!" of the new era of college expansion in the opening years of its second century.



THETA EPSILON LITERARY SOCIETY

The chief end of the college student is, supposedly, knowledge; but the greatest desire of the representative student is to enjoy himself forever. And so, of the many factors which contribute to education, those are most efficient in which there is a judicious blending of instruction and entertainment. The work of the literary society is ideally suited to meet this double need of the student's nature, for it is at the same time educational and recreational.

We are proud of our societies at Maryville. They are doing excellent work and are deservedly popular—none more so than Theta Epsilon. Never have the Thetas enjoyed a more prosperous year, or looked into a more promising future. The number of names now on the roll almost doubles that of any previous year. The regular weekly meetings of the society have been so well attended that it would seem Theta Hall will soon be too strait a place for us. Among the Thetas are many girls of marked literary and musical ability. We are especially fortunate this year in having an orchestra, which has helped much in making the programs varied and attractive. The mid-winter, an original play entitled "The Doings of Dorothy," was as successful as the Theta mid-winters have always been, and upheld Theta's high reputation for originality and workmanship.

What Theta is now may be told; but what she may become cannot be told, for her future is as bright as the future of Maryville College.

ALPHA SIGMA LITERARY SOCIETY

WHILE in college, there are two ways by which students can publicly show the caliber of work they are doing—in literary affairs, and in athletics. And as the training of the mind is the chief and foremost aim of all colleges and universities, we should ordinarily look to the literary side of college life to find what rank that institution holds. So it is at Maryville, and among boys and girls is found an interest in this line that places Maryville high on the college map of the South.

Throughout the thirty-seven years of its history, the Alpha Sigma Literary Society has proved its worth, and the past two years have been no exception to the general rule. In all lines of work, in every activity, the members of the Alpha Sigma have been the leaders. Among its members are found the leading men of the school.

The annual mid-winter, the only society entertainment, regarded as the best proof of the society's work, has not been held during either of the past two years because of an absence of men from school. With the return of peace the mid-winters will be resumed next fall.

In 1918 five out of eight intercollegiate debaters were Alpha Sigmas, and this year, four out of five men debaters. The Highland Echo has never been under other hands than those of loyal Alpha Sigmas until the exigencies of the war demanded a girl editor. Every varsity man in basketball claims this as his society, the majority of the other athletes, and the prime movers in other activities, such as the Y. M. C. A. and Law Club.

The war handicapped every society, and the Alpha Sigma suffered greatly from the loss of old and prominent members. At the opening of this college year things were in a bad way, but with the ending of the war the society has progressed by leaps and bounds, and is back on a sound basis. Saturday night has been turned over by the faculty to the societies to be their night, and no other events are allowed on that evening. This has produced very beneficial results.

On the honor roll of Maryville College are found the names of many former members of the society. Some have given their lives for freedom's sake. For all these the highest regard and honor is paid by the society. The loss of Hal Lloyd during the month of January, 1918, brought sadness to the hearts of all. He had demonstrated his qualities as a leader, and as a man of the very highest principles, motives, and ambitions. His loss came as a sad blow.

The annual oratorical contest for the M. B. Hunter Gold Medal, opened in the spring for all members of the society, has been held each year. In 1917 the winner was Horace Dawson, while the emblem was won last year by Robert Adams.

Alpha Sigma is and will continue to be a great factor on the Hill. The unique place that it holds at Maryville is sufficient token of its record. It seeks to promote the love of literary work, an ability to appear in public, and a fellowship together. Although by graduation it will lose eight of the ten Senior boys, the future of the society is assured, for each year the cream of the new students is gathered into its ranks.

BAINONIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

EVERY year is meant to be a promotion, a lifting of life to a higher level, and an arousing of latent susceptibilities for the benefit of others. Bainonian is ever advancing in motive, spirit, and measure. This the Centennial Year closes with a splendid record of work accomplished, and a greatly increased membership for our society. The weekly meetings mean an opportunity for gaining and expressing our most worthy ideas, a closer social communion with our fellow students, a diversion from the regular class room grind, and a fuller realization of what Maryville stands for—altruism, a motive which allures us on to something higher.

There can be no doubt as to the Bainonian spirit with its ever-increasing amount and quality of work, and it is this spirit which awakens one to new ambitions, ideals, and feelings.

Measure? Well, Bainonian measures up to the standards set by our noble Alma Mater. What more can be required?

Won't you be one of us?

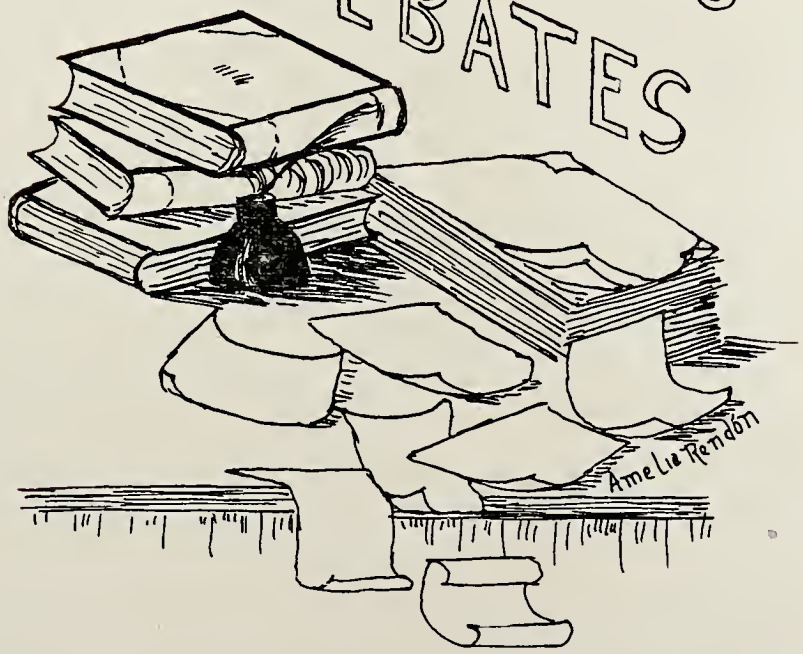
PUBLICATIONS AND DEBATES



FORENSIC LEAGUE

AMONG Maryville's energetic and important organizations the Forensic League holds a place second to none. It is composed of all who have represented, or have been chosen to represent, Maryville College in some intercollegiate forensic contest. At present the entire membership are debaters, but with the founding of the League two years ago, a wider range was given the work than simply debating. All orators who represent Maryville in contests such as the Prohibition, or Peace, are rightfully members. The purpose of the League is to foster an interest in such contests, and to serve as a working basis for the numerous lines of work.

With that end in view some twenty-five men met together over two years ago and founded the Forensic League, and so important did it become, even during its first year, that the faculty voted to appropriate a certain percentage of the athletic fee for the purposes of the League. This was a remarkable tribute to the League.

It is in debates that Maryville has established a record that stands far and above that of any other school in this section. The first year three out of four debates were won. Since then the majority of debates have been victories for Maryville.

On March 29, 1918, M. C. and Tusculum locked horns in a dual, deadly contest over the question, "Resolved: That there should be a League of Nations to Enforce Peace." The affirmative team, composed of Robert W. Adams, Vincent Hamilton, and David H. Briggs, mopped up their opponents on the home floor, but the negative team, composed of Robert Bartlett, Gaston Cooper, and James Martin, lost by a two to one decision at Tusculum. On April 12 the question, "Resolved: That the Federal Government should own and control all Public Utilities of National Importance," was debated with Emory and Henry. Glen Lloyd and Oscar Stanton, supporting the affirmative, won unanimously in the single debate.

The League has been instrumental in developing two strong teams in 1919. A great deal of interest and enthusiasm was displayed at the preliminaries. Those who secured positions on the 1919 team may consider themselves fortunate, because there was keen competition. Since debating arrangements were all made since the war ended, only our ancient rival Tusculum was lined up for a debate on April 18. The question decided upon was a very live and interesting one, "Resolved: That the United States Government should control all Means of Interstate Transportation for a period of five years after the Conclusion of Peace." At home, the affirmative team, composed of Robert W. Adams, Helen Lewis, and Forrest Brown, will uphold M. C.'s laurels. At Tusculum, the negative team, composed of David H. Briggs, Homer Weisbecker, and J. H. Turner, will appear.

In this section of the country, Maryville leads Forensic activities. Her past record is an enviable one. Today there is nothing more important than intercollegiate debating, and the students are indeed proud of Maryville's splendid record.

The success of the teams has been in a large measure due to the untiring efforts and labors of the Faculty Representative and Coach, Professor E. R. Hunter.

ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL, 1918-19

Every student of Maryville is a member of the Athletic Association. Each year the Association elects an Athletic Board of Control from among its members. The board has direct supervision over all athletics, electing the managers of the various teams, and awarding the varsity "M." The board for 1918-19 is as follows:

FOOTBALL S. A. T. C

AT a spring meeting of the Board of Directors in 1918, it was decided that intercollegiate football would be dropped for the duration of the war, also meaning that no athletic fee would be necessary for the fall term. This decision was made because most of the college men were in the army and navy, and other schools were dropping the college major sport.

With the coming of the S. A. T. C. to Maryville, many college men who otherwise would not have returned, re-entered in September. Soon after, the War Department announced that limited schedules for football would be allowed, and not only allowed it, but encouraged the formation of intercollegiate football.

M. C., therefore, sounded the call, and thirty men responded. Under the able coaching of two former varsity players, Clemens and Briggs, a very creditable team was formed. Three games were played. The first with T. M. I. was lost by a score of 14-0, but it was clearly contested throughout. The second game was with Maryville's most hated rival, the University of Tennessee. On Wait field in Knoxville the battle royal took place, and when the referee's whistle ended the game, U. T. had emerged victorious in a bitter struggle to a 19-7 tune. In this game M. C. displayed some wonderful aerial work, completing 14 forward passes out of 21. At the close of the game M. C. was running rings around U. T. with passes, but the condition of the field kept her from scoring more. The last and third game was with Carson-Newman, ending with Maryville the winner, 12-0.

The season was short, the players inexperienced, competition very marked, the playing very clean. The team was very light on the whole. In the backfield Sandberg was the mainstay, while in the line no individual star could be picked. Although not truly representative of Maryville College, and although no letters were awarded, the caliber of football was as much as could be expected.

BASKETBALL, 1918-1919

THE opening of the Basketball season certainly looked gloomy for Maryville. Everything in the way of athletics had been broken into by the S. A. T. C., and practically no plans had been made for a basketball team. Immediately after the winter term started, however, Professor Davis and Captain Briggs got together to see what could be done toward building up a team to represent Maryville. With not a single Varsity man in school and no regular coach, prospects were not especially pleasing. It was not long, however, before Maryville woke up to the fact that she had almost unconsciously developed one of the best teams in this section. Just before the first regular game Weisbacker appeared upon the scene of action and took one of the forward positions, thus greatly strengthening the whole team. He also took charge of the coaching end of the game.

After it became known that basketball would be played it was too late to arrange for as many games as were usually played during the season. Several good games were played, nevertheless, the best of the season being the one with the University of Tennessee. As pretty a game as this one was is seldom seen on any court. Both teams fought to the limit, but they were both clean and all the men played like the true sportsmen that they were. Maryville won by a very close margin.

Only one trip was made and this ended somewhat disastrously. At Williamsburg the members of the team felt that they were not getting a square deal, so they quit, thus forfeiting the game to Cumberland College, 2-0. Another game was played with Union College on the trip and was lost.

On the whole the season was successful, as four games were won out of the seven played. Every game played on the home floor was won by a good margin.

BASKETBALL 1918-1916

WITH such old players as Burchfiel, Davis, Moseley, and Bailey together with some of last year's second team and the new talent which appeared at the beginning of the season, no one could do other than predict a successful season for the girls' basketball team. And it will take only a glance at the record to show that no one was disappointed, however, great their expectations may have been. Out of the six games played, all but one of which were against teams supposedly on a par with the one put out by Maryville, the Maryville team lost only one during the whole season, and more than doubled the score of all her opponents. This game was lost to East Tennessee Normal on the home court, and it was mainly due to one of Normal's forwards that Maryville was bested at this time.

Probably the hardest game was against Cumberland College at Williamsburg, Kentucky, on the latter's court. This game was going for Cumberland until the last few minutes of play, when Maryville took the lead and in the end came out three points ahead of her opponent.

The game which Martha Washington and the two with Murphy were all easily taken by one-sided scores.

THE "M" CLUB

The purpose of the "M" Club is to promote clean athletics and to create a true sporting spirit in all athletic contests. It serves as a stimulus to athletics, for in order to become a member of the club a student must be awarded at least two Varsity "M s," in football, basketball, baseball, or track.

ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL 1917-1918

Every spring the students, all of whom are members of the Athletic Association, elect from among the students, the faculty, and the business men of the town, a body which is known as the Athletic Board of Control, to look after all athletic affairs for the coming school year. The board has direct supervision of all branches of athletics, arranging games, awarding "M s," and electing managers of the teams. The board for the year 1917-1918 was as follows:

ALTON D. BRYSON ..... President

BASEBALL 1918

THE 1918 baseball season was from all standpoints the hardest schedule a Maryville team has had in recent years. More games were played at home than in other years, and for this credit is due to Manager Scruggs. The home diamond was the scene of an even dozen games, and games they were too, some of them. The climax of the season came with the U. T. games, a series of three, of which U. T. won two and M. C. one.

"Hookie" Everett coached the team again, and from the material on hand made a fairly good team, considering all the disadvantages under which he was laboring. LaRue was the main pitcher and with Manager Scruggs, handled the mound work in good style.

In batting, the Orange and Garnet had it all over their opponents, finishing the season with an average of .252 while the opposing teams only hit for .182.

FOOTBALL, 1917

IN a year unusually fraught with difficulties of every form, the Highlanders hung up a record during the football season of 1917 that will rank among the best of Maryville's annals. A new coach, an absence of old and experienced man, a schedule with some half dozen changes in it during the season, and the added handicap of making several extended trips, all combined to dampen the spirits of the most ardent football enthusiast.

But not so! When the trumpet called for candidates early in September, forty men answered the summons, and from this motley host Coach Edgar O. Brown whipped a team into shape which could smother Polk High within the first two weeks of practice by the overwhelming score of 52-0.

The season was remarkable in that two games were played with Tusculum, one in Knoxville and the other in Maryville. The University of Tennessee, with whom M. C. had scheduled a game, dropped intercollegiate football, but offered inducements to play on Wait Field that were sufficient to commend themselves to the ever-watchful hawk-eye of "Jaws," and so the first game between the ancient rivals occurred in Knoxville.

The next week-end Maryville stepped out, all clad in a special Pullman to Lexington, Kentucky, where Kentucky State, with the hardest line the Orange and Garnet hit during the season, won a hard fought game, full of thrills and long runs, to the tune of 19-0. Still believing themselves as yet incapable of making the proper showing at home, the team assayed to tow Mississippi A. & M. into camp on the latter's ground at Starksville, Miss. But A. & M., thirsting for revenge after the 7-7 tie Maryville had given her the year previous, pulled off some really, truly, wonderful stunts, and in spite of our heroic attempt to "pull the chestnut out of the fire" we bowed before their mighty onslaughts by a score of a trio of touchdowns with their goals tacked on.

The big home game followed when Center, who had held M. C. to a scoreless tie in 1916, invaded the home field, took a good glance at the team, and then conquered. In the first game that Maryville had lost on her home field in four years, Center displayed so wonderful an array of football technique, forward passes and all-round team work, that Maryville never could get started. Result, 33-0.

The season closed with two games, one with Emory and Henry on their grounds, which resulted in a victory for the Highlanders 26-0, and a Thanksgiving game with Tusculum at Maryville that capped the climax to the fall's work when we won 32-6.

On the whole, the team was on a par with former ones. Only three letter men were back, but around these three was built a formidable machine. Captain Clemens at quarterback, with four years of playing behind him, was a most able leader. Manager Bryson, a six year man, played his old position as full, and showed very consistent work during the season, such as only a veteran could. Briggs at tackle handled his side of the line well, and his stability accomplished much in a line that was in other respects green.

The back field was more rounded out and seasoned than the line, as the offensive power would indicate. Hurst and McNutt performed in their capacities as halves, standing in high rank beside their more experienced team-mates at quarter and full. The line was green, but heavy. Four men, Cooper, Eagleton, Scruggs, and Davidson, composed the repertoire of ends. Briggs and Johnson held down the tackles, James and Jellicorse the guards, while McLaughlin was the pivot. Lloyd sustained injuries during the early season that kept him out of many games, but he did good work in the backfield in those games he entered.

BASEBALL, 1917

BASEBALL for the season of 1917 was slightly below par, by which is meant the standard that Maryville usually sets in this sport. From a dearth of pitchers and only a few experienced players, "Hookie" had to build a machine which could represent M. C.

The season was short, composed of eleven games, and a rather surprising fact was that every game was played on the local diamond. Five were victories. Only two shutouts were played, and Maryville was victorious in only one of these. Tusculum, L. M. U. Washington, and U. T. were the teams from this section played.

The greatest game was also the sweetest, for U. T. bowed in defeat in an 11-inning game by a score of 5-4. Words cannot commence to set forth the thrills of the game, the spectacular plays of both teams, the hits, the catches, the bunts, and the stolen bases. In the eighth U. T. scored two runs, only to have Kirkpatrick, a sub, spoil their victory by a hit that brought two across in our half. In the tenth U. T. took the lead again, only to have it tied in like manner, but in the eleventh inning, when it looked as though surely U. T. would leave with the bacon after scoring one run, M. C. came back and did them one better.

The shining lights of the team were many. In team batting Maryville had an average of .240 as against her opponents' .194. In fielding the team averaged .915.

The results were:

Knoxville Deaf and Dumb School.	4	Maryville	15
West Virginia Wesleyan	10	Maryville	9

BASKETBALL, 1917-1918

BASKETBALL for the season of 1917-1918 can be summed up with two words, short and successful. Eight games were played, and seven were victories. The team developed into a well-oiled machine, evenly balanced in passing and shooting.

A dearth of letter men in school made it necessary to build up an entirely new team, except for Manager Witherspoon, who carried his guard position with the coolness of a veteran. Around him was made a machine that gave Maryville one of its best seasons. Eagleton was elected captain, and piloted the team very creditably, incidentally piloting the ball from his center position into the waiting hands of those two inseparable clowns, Wagner and Weisbecker, forwards. Wagner came as a Freshman, but as a former member of the Ohio State High School Championship Team, and as a floor man was without a peer, while Weisbecker proved a good running mate. Drake at the other guard offset his diminutive stature with his pep and fight, and became a real guard before the season was over.

Two games were played with U. T., the first one in Knoxville resulting in a victory for our opponents, 28-19, but in the greatest game here in years Maryville turned the tables with a 20-19 victory. In March the team took a trip through East Tennessee, playing four games in as many consecutive nights and winning every game, a remarkable record.

The scrubs played two games, both of which were won. The second team was faithful in its work to the end of the season, and its untiring efforts greatly helped in shaping a winning team.

Viewed from every angle, from percentage of games won, from the greatest basketball trip a Maryville team ever had, from the cleanness and team work of the five, the season can be placed in history as worthy of M. C.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL, 1917-1918

FEW schools in the South enjoy the distinction Maryville does in putting out girls' basketball teams that every year hold their own against all comers and who are the most consistent contenders for the Southern Championship among Tennessee teams. Ever since the days of Martin and Wilson, the latter, it might be stated, is now coach of the team, M. C. has made a most enviable record in girls' basketball.

The season of 1918 ranks among the best. Nine games composed the schedule, and the grand finale gazed upon a row seven scalps out of nine possible scalps. The two games lost were both on foreign courts, one to Chattanooga, and the other to Normal. Only three games were played on the home floor, and six away, but the girls had earned their privilege to take trips by the great game they put up. More trips were taken during the season than ever before.

Bee Marshall at forward was the star of the season, doing the heavy scoring and also her full share of the floor work. Dixie Webb and Edith Davis put in their bit when it came to scoring too. Celeste Moseley at center outplayed all she opposed, while "Manager" Burchfiel and Sue Nuckols made it death for any forward to dare attempt to score.

INTERCLASS SPORTS, 1917-1918

INTERCLASS athletics in an organized way are recent innovations in Maryville College, dating back to only two years ago, and in reality a complete competitive schedule of all athletics was not made until the year 1917-1918. During the three terms the three major sports served as a means for the classes to develop class spirit and enthusiasm along helpful lines, to uncover varsity material, and to afford the benefit of athletics to a larger number of college students.

The underclassmen were the principals in the majority of the games, as the absence of older men from school made it practically impossible for the upperclassmen to engage in the sports to the extent of the Freshmen and Sophomores. Only in girls' basketball did the upperclassmen participate.

On the Saturday following Thanksgiving, the Freshies and Sophs staged a great football game, attended by a crowd, participated in by a large number of men, full of thrilling plays and fine playing, and spectacular as viewed from the sidelines. The Freshmen won the game by a score of 28-6, but the score does not indicate how close and exciting the game was at times.

In basketball a preliminary season was played, in which no varsity or squad men could participate. The Sophomores came off victorious in three straight games of a planned five game series by scores of 18-8, 23-13, and 17-11. In the final playoff when the varsity and squad men were allowed to play, the Sophomores doubled the score in a walk away—30-15. The girls staged a more interesting series. At first the Freshmen beat the Sophomores and Juniors, thereby heading for the championship, but the Juniors upset the dope, and came right back, and by administering defeats to both the underclassmen in fast games, gained the coveted honor, and with it the right to claim the championship.

A series of the best three out of five games was booked for baseball, but the Freshmen by winning three consecutive games by scores of 8-2, 3-1, and 8-5, took unto themselves the championship.

A summary of the year shows that the Freshmen, by winning the football and baseball honors, and losing the basketball, must be given the credit for being superior in athletics. The games were played with a minimum of ill-will, a maximum of pep, and served a worthy end in the college life of the year.

ALBERTE MARGUERITE BRODIEZ

Alberte Marguerite Brodiez is a little French war orphan living at Ecury-sur-Coôle, Marne, a district which has suffered most cruelly at the hands of the late invaders. Her soldier-father was killed during the early days of the war, and thus the family was left with no means of support.

In the spring of 1918 the Suffrage League voted to adopt little Alberte for the year; and again this spring they have agreed to continue their support, for although the war is now over, the difficult period of reconstruction has just begun.

THUS IT IS

When profs are hard and flunks come fast
And all the world seems cruel,
We moan and groan around the town
And cuss the dog-gone school.
And when the dean his notice send:
Inviting us to call,
And tell him why we never go
To chapel now at all;
When father sends no fifty bucks
But twenty-five instead;
It makes you feel so deathly sick
You want to go to bed.
And then you go flop off to sleep
Against your will, and then
You doze for just a little while
And hear that sweet Big Ben.
And it's so cold your tootsies freeze
When you stick out your toe;
And yet you know it means get up
And off to chapel go.
When springtime comes, and the moon shines bright
And all the world seems glad,
Why is it things like these occur
To make a fellow mad?

Listen, my children, I'll tell you all
Of a midnight feast in Pearsons Hall.
'Twas begun at eleven in room "sixty-five;
'Tis a wonder a one is still alive
To remember and tell what did befall.

For in spite of the whispers and cautious looks
Of those who partook of the work of the cooks,
E'er long a step in the hall was heard;
A bug light flashed and no one stirred.
Miss Mollie had found them, and—'nuff said!

FRESHMAN QUESTIONS AND SENIOR ANSWERS

Walter Gibson: "What is the difference between a cat and a comma?"

Miss Sheddan: "A cat has claws at the ends of its paws, and a comma is a pause at the end of a clause."

Irma: "In what key would a lover write a proposal of marriage?"

Purdy: "Be mine ah, I think, don't you?"

Kathrina Barber: "How many fathers has a man?"

Adams: "Nine; his father, his father-in-law, his grandfather, two grandfathers, and his fore (four) fathers."

Bernice Jones: "Do you really think the Dean ever robs his wife?"

Miss Newell: "Yes, it is rumored that he sometimes "hooks" her dress.

Freshie in Chemistry: "Miss Henry, how was iron first discovered?"

Miss Henry: "It is said that some early discoverers smelt it."

DONT'S

Don't eat too much, don't walk too much,
Repeat too much or talk too much.
Don't think too much, don't do too much,
Don't drink too much or woo too much.
Don't spend too much, don't make too much,
Don't lend too much or take too much—
Thus you'll avoid all pain and strife
And lead a very dismal life.

There were two girls who would bet
And said they had never lost yet;
So they bet they could stay
And cut gym every day,
And for once these two girls lost a bet.

SAY—

Jarvis had finished his French quiz, and before handing his paper to Madame, wrote this at the bottom of the page:

"During this examination I was unable to catch anyone looking at my paper. Furthermore, I wish to state that my own frantic S. O. S. signals were entirely disregarded."

Dean Barnes, rushing into the office between classes: "Has anyone here seen my book on Memory? I have forgotten where I left it."

Weisbecker: "Just think, if the girls were taken away from this college, what would follow?"

"Sheeney:" "We would."

There was an M. C. stude could grind
For hours and hours at a time
So he ground day by day
Till his head gave away,
And sawdust they found in his mind.
(Did you know him?)

The President had a little dog
All spotted black and white,
And everywhere the President went
Rip was sure to be in sight.

To chapel with him he came one day,
Which sent the Dean into a rage,
And made the students laugh and play
To see a dog upon the stage.

And so the Dean poor Rip turned out;
But still he lingered near,
Till the President should come out
And the Dean's frown disappear.

Dignified Seniors

Now the Annual's last page is finished,
The staff's weary work put away;
Now the Juniors' cares are diminished,
And their hearts are light and gray.

For no one will be collecting,
And no one bothering with dues,
No one the pictures directing,
And no one invoking the muse.

Now an editor can do as she pleases,
A manager can have some fun,
Can indulge in jokes and teases,
Since this old Annual is done!
